In 1962, President John F. Kennedy created the President’s Council on the Status of Women with Eleanor Roosevelt as its first Chair. The Council urged each state to create its own organization for looking at issues facing women. Oklahoma Governor Henry Bellmon’s executive order created the Governor’s Commission on the Status of Women in 1965. Each successive governor issued their own orders establishing a similar commission or committee. Membership ranged from twenty to ninety members.

The need for continuity led Claudia Tarrington, working with Governor David Walters, House Speaker Glen Johnson, Senate President Pro Tempore Bob Cullison, Senator Angela Monson, and Representative Laura Boyd to establish the Oklahoma Commission on the Status of Women as a statutory commission. In 1994, Claudia Tarrington became the first chair. She was followed by Linda Maxey, Jilda Motley, Rebecca Kennedy, Debbe Leftwich, Bernice Mitchell and current chair Patricia Presley. In 1997 Bob Darcy became the only male Commissioner.

The Legislature charged the Commission to act as an advisory entity on equity issues relating to gender bias; monitor legislation to determine whether it is discriminatory toward one gender or the other; act as a resource and a clearinghouse for research on issues related to women and gender bias; report annually to the Governor, President Pro Tempore of the Senate, and Speaker of the House of Representatives regarding its activities; and make recommendations concerning needed legislation or regulatory changes relating to equity and gender bias. The Commission consists of thirty members who serve staggered five-year terms; ten members are appointed by the Governor, ten by the President Pro Tempore, and ten by the Speaker.

Claudia Tarrington was a tireless champion for the advancement of women and is credited with the legislation creating a permanent Commission on the Status of Women. During her tenure as chair the Commission established the Oklahoma Women’s Hall of Fame, the Women’s Summit, and coordinated passage of a law that eliminated gender bias in all future state legislation. A political consultant and government relations specialist, Tarrington also worked on women’s issues at the national level. She served as the outreach director and Senate lobbyist for the ERA Countdown Campaign, a director in the National Women’s Agenda Project, and as a member of the Women’s Leadership Forum of the Democratic National Committee. At her death in 2003, she was working as a lobbyist and fund raiser for Tulsa’s Expo Square.
