

DEDICATION TO WILLIAM JOHN LAMBERTON, FOUNDING EDITOR

On the occasion of the tenth anniversary of its publication, FREE INQUIRY in CREATIVE SOCIOLOGY is respectfully dedicated to William John Lamberton, Ph.D. who edited and published the first issue, largely at his own expense in April 1972. It was presented at the organizational meeting of the Oklahoma Sociology Association and was immediately adopted as the OSA official journal. In the same year, John Lamberton received the Outstanding Graduate Assistant Teacher Award at Oklahoma State University. He has held teaching positions at the University of Tulsa and at Tulsa Junior College, but his primary occupation has been in the field of ecology providing environmental impact studies for major companies in the energy industry. He is presently Executive Vice President of Chemical Resources Incorporated, of Tulsa, Oklahoma. John Lamberton is an excellent example of an applied sociologist, using research methodology, ecological theory, computer applications, and systems theory in applied sociology. He continues as a supporter, subscriber, and contributor to FREE INQUIRY in CREATIVE SOCIOLOGY, for which, the present Editor is most grateful.
